

The Adventures Of Special Edward

School doors fly open and children come racing out in a mad rush. As the dust settles, ten-year-old Edward and his pals appear like superheroes in the doorway, ready to take on the world. They press the start button on their jet packs and we hear the narrator say, “Once again the kids race off Little Rascal style to their super-secret, mega-awesome, totally hidden-in-plain-sight clubhouse to plan their next adventure. They’ve only got 3 hours before dinner, so where will they go? Past, present or future?”

Imagine Johnny Depp, Spock and Rain Man morphing together and becoming a 10-year-old boy. That's the kind of oddball-cool Edward is. Call it Aspergers, call it genius, he's got something special going on. Edward is a math wiz, an expert guitar player, and has a photographic memory, which allows him to memorize Google. In fact, his friends don't "Google" things, they "Edward" them. Edward is blunt, speaks without filters and takes everything literally. So don't say "lend me a hand" unless you want to hear an explanation why it's not possible without surgery!

His best friend PUCK is the king of cooking. All he thinks about, and in fact wears, is food. He doesn't seem to mind that he is constantly drenched in gooey, sticky, yummy concoctions. That's why Edward trails him with a moistened towelette, wiping up every drip he drops. Puck can cook anything, anytime, anywhere. Pterodactyl egg omelet? Done. Jurassic jam? Done. Moon rock soup? Done.
Puck's messy but he's impressive.

DAVY has a flair for the dramatic. His special skill is making up songs on the fly that capture the moment. Sometimes it's a big production number or sometimes it's just a silly little ditty:

Edward is stressing out
Puck is making a mess
Candy's applying her lip-gloss
It's getting all over her dress

His little sis, CANDY, is 100% girl. But her pink polka dotted toolkit contains everything she might need to fix anything that might need fixing: computers, bikes, ham radios, beef radios. And you should see her collection of flavored lip-glosses, which she applies a bit too frequently. You can always trace her steps by following the strawberry scented smudges. One day she discovered a major leak of Sillysyldium in the time portal of their clubhouse. So she ordered everyone to chew 37 pieces of Hubba Bubba Bubble Gum, applying the chewed goo to the leak. Voila! Problem fixed. What would they do without Candy!

Their neighbor, Mr. McGillicuddy, is a porch-sitter. He loves classical music and listens all day long. He abhors anything that even looks like fun. Unfortunately for him, he lives next door to Edward where fun is king. Thankfully, Mr. McGillicuddy is a curmudgeon only 99.9% of the time; once in a blue moon he forgets about his bunions and bone density problems and chases after the gang hoping to join them on an adventure.

Parents, Sonny and Sharon, simply appear as big floating, expressive mouths – one lipsticked, one mustached. They pulse like a heart as they talk, kiss, frown, and smile. Being a one-hit-wonder duo from the 70s, they love to communicate in song. And it couldn't be cooler. Think Will Farrell and Anna Gasteyer on Saturday Night Live.

Leah Andreone 310-922-8374
Kevin Fisher 310-850-4028

(All artwork is clipart merely intending to show our vision for the cartoon)